2. The facts supporting this belief are as follows:

The defendant committed the offense of domestic assault in the first degree by attempting to kill or knowingly caused or attempted to cause serious physical injury to a domestic victim.

The victim has been suspicious of his wife, the defendant, putting poisonous and/or toxic substances in his food and beverages without his knowledge for the past six weeks.

The victim described eight occurrences in which the defendant provided a beverage or food that had an odd taste and shortly after ingesting he experienced extreme fatigue, confusion, blurred vision, severe cotton mouth, and nausea.

a green bowl containing what he described as a root from the bag labeled "lily of the valley". The victim photographed the bowl with the contents, which I viewed.

The victim displayed a video capturing the defendant adding items to a blender on 01-16-2024 at about 0745 hours. The defendant emptied the contents from what appeared to be the same bowl he had photographed earlier in the morning, into the blender. The defendant blended the contents, poured the contents into a yellow insulated tumbler, and placed the tumbler in the fridge. The victim stated the defendant prepared the smoothie for him.

I seized the yellow insulated tumbler and contents to be submitted to the MSHP Laboratory for testing.

The defendant admitted to adding a root of the "lily of the valley" into the blender while preparing a smoothie drink for the victim. The defendant admitted doing this with the intent to cause the victim harm. The defendant admitted to knowing that ingesting "lily of the valley" could result in death. The defendant admitted knowing the act was illegal.

The National Capital Poison Center advised all parts of the plant "lily of the valley" contain numerous cardiac glycosides, which slow down the heart and cause irregular heart rhythm. "Lily of the valley" is categorized as having major toxicity. Other signs of cardiac glycosides are nausea, vomiting, and abdominal pain.

I swear, under penalty of perjury that the facts stated above are true to the best of my knowledge.
